

The Light Jar

This year I have been reading The Light Jar by Lisa Thompson because I find it is a great heart warming story. I have been through a lot and found myself making connections to the character in the book called Nate because he lost his mum. They went to a tumbledown cottage to escape from Gary. Nate found himself all alone except for company of his old imaginary friend Sam. Sam teaches Nate not to be afraid of the dark, and that comfort comes from the most unexpected places. So I think you should read The Light Jar because it is a story finding friendship and strength to light up the dark.:)
